The Telephone Company is finding it very difficult to give the prompt and efficient service it wishes to give. There is time lost in getting connections that may be justly charged to us; wrong numbers are given and unfortunate disconnects occur. This is a source of regret to us and we are endeavoring to remedy the situation. Subscribers can help us in restoring normal conditions.

For example: When the operator is slow in answering your call, do not waste time in censuring her when she does answer. The delay is not due to negligence upon her part or to equipment trouble. There is now a serious shortage of experienced telephone operators and this, together with the heavy use of our service, is responsible for much of the delay.

If you know a young woman who wishes an attractive position at a good salary, please ask her to call at our Operators' Training Department, 311 West Washington Street.
